Highlights: Quarter 2 1. Community Engagement Boost: - Increased community and stakeholder discussions about the program and workforce connections, fostering a collaborative environment. 2. Teacher Tech Proficiency: - Teachers engaged in learning sessions with the Buncombe Partnership's coach, focusing on the Creative Curriculum's online platform. They began crafting digital lessons, enhancing program tech integration. Hardships: 1. Director's Substitution Role: - Director spent approximately 80% of November substituting in classrooms, impacting strategic initiatives and program leadership. 2. Substitute Shortage: - Addressing the acute need for substitutes; anticipates access to a substitute starting the second week of January to support teachers during coaching sessions. Action Steps: 1. Substitute Recruitment: - Intensify recruitment efforts to expand the substitute teacher pool, collaborating with local partnership for a reliable network. Workload Management: - Implement strategies to balance the director's workload, ensuring optimal allocation between administrative duties and classroom support. 3. Stakeholder Engagement: - Build on increased community engagement, involving stakeholders in program activities for enhanced support. 4. Tech Integration Support: - Provide ongoing support for teachers transitioning to the Creative Curriculum's digital platform, ensuring effective tech integration. Progress made to reach grant projections include: Director has maintained program documents, supported staff with Quarter 3 implementation of Creative Curriculum. All sites are collecting student observations and data using the Teaching Strategies Gold online platform and all rising kindergarten students will have transition reports shared with families at the end of the school year. Additionally, students who remain in the program will have data spanning two years in the program and available for their families and teachers as they transition to kindergarten in 2025/26. Additionally, the teaching assistants have supported the classroom teachers by collecting data and observations of students, as well as supporting Creative Curriculum lessons and activities. Staff met virtually in this quarter to reflect on their lessons/units and share suggestions and insights based on their implementation. Also, staff have continued with coaching support through BPFC to reflect and planning lessons/units with Creative Curriculum. This will continue through the remainder of the school year.

Comments:

Q1:We are working with Buncombe Partnership to determine if any of my sites should go through QRS this year or not- TBD based on teacher goals. Q2: Through conversations with BPFC and our licensing consultants, it was determined that it would not be benefical to complete QRS this year. The program sites will be ready for visits and will participate in the "practice" visits that are available when it is their year to be visited.
